Building a bridge to citizenship and the good things of life:

An Introduction to Social Role Valorisation

This introductory workshop offers a practical introduction to the principles of Social Role Valorization. Through a combination of multimedia presentation and small group discussion, participants will learn about the phenomenon of social devaluation. Social Role Valorization is a comprehensive theory which provides insights as to why certain groups of people become devalued in society, the life experiences that are common as a result, valued social roles as a powerful response in combatting these, and key ideas which can guide us in pursuing valued social roles for the people we support.

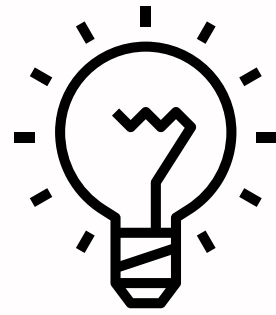

Many participants experience the learning within this event as the most helpful, inspiring, and clarifying body of knowledge they have been exposed to in their professional development, enabling them to focus on being of service to others in ways that matter.

The workshop includes multi-media presentation, small and large group reflection and discussion, and resource materials.

All sessions are on Zoom Online Platform.

What people say about this course...

“ This course allowed me to stop and think about people. To think about people as citizens and to unpick the norm, ask questions of the current practices and be more conscious of how services can impact those we are supporting.

A top-down view of a wooden desk. In the top right corner, a portion of a silver laptop is visible, showing keys for 'tab', 'caps lock', 'shift', and 'fn'. In the top center, a small green succulent plant sits in a dark pot. In the center, a pair of black-rimmed glasses lies horizontally. To the right of the glasses is a white ceramic coffee cup with a yellow handle, filled with dark coffee. The background is a light-colored wooden surface with a prominent grain.
